Menno Simons, 1496-1561

Conscientious follower of Christ, humble leader of his brethren, able interpreter of Scripture,—Menno Simons is truly the greatest figure in Anabaptist-Mennonite history, and as such is wholly worthy of the tribute which the Mennonite Church brings to him by bearing his name. In his day Menno courageously carried the torch of truth, confirming the testimony of every written and spoken word by his life. May we, like him, in complete devotion seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and find in that devotion "all other things added" unto us.

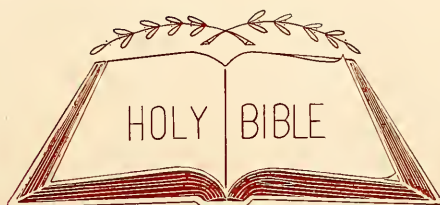

Dedication

"For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ"—was a favorite motto of Arno Simons. Arno first recognized the true Foundation, and then consecrated his life as a "lively" stone, to be used in the building of the Kingdom of God. The apostles, the early Church Fathers, the leaders of the Reformation, the Mennonite founders,—all these and others were great stones in the hand of the Master Builder.

And who are the "lively" stones of today? "Those men lived in historic days," we say. Yes, and we are living in historic days. "But we live in difficult times," we say. Yes, and Arno Simons lived in a difficult time. Our days are challenging days, not hopeless days. Built on the true Foundation, with the Holy Scriptures as the light to guide our way, and the devotion of the fathers of old as our inspiration, we too can build and be built in the Kingdom of God. In this spirit we humbly dedicate the Maple Leaf of 1942 to our forefathers in the long train of Mennonite heritage.

There's a spot in Indiana, where the leafy maple grows:
'Tis our dear and glorious Parkside, where the Elkhart River flows;
'Tis a spot we love most dearly, 'tis a spot we'll cherish long
After youth and strength have faded, and this world has heard our song.

Here we learn life's duties doing, in the sacred college halls,
Freshman, sophomore, junior, senior, answer "aye" when duty calls,
Though our talents may be slender, yet our hearts beat warm and true,
Ever lead us onward, upward, ever shall our strength renew.

And the lasting ties of friendship, woven through with hopes and fears,
May they ne'er be broken asunder in the distant coming years;
Though our future paths may lead us to fair heights we cannot see,
Alma Mater, 'ere we leave you, loyalty we pledge to thee.

Goshen College, ever singing,
To her motto we'll be true,
Honor to our masters bringing
Alma Mater we love you.

The Goshen College Memorial Library

The most noteworthy progress in connection with the library this year has been the purchase of twenty-five hundred dollars' worth of new books over and above the regular book expenditure. When Goshen College was admitted into North Central Association membership last year, necessary improvements were suggested. An increase in library book holdings was one of these improvements. The purchases this year included books chiefly in the fields of recent literature, Bible, chemistry, home economics, music, education, and reference, with some in all fields. The money was made available by the generous support of loyal alumni.

The library regularly receives two hundred and twenty-five periodicals. The present holding of the library is approximately twenty-one thousand, seven hundred volumes, eleven hundred of which were added this year. Several of these additions were imported from abroad. New chairs have also been installed during the past year. A floor covering for the reading room has been ordered, but due to the national emergency, the time of delivery is uncertain.

Much credit for the present status of the library is due Mrs. Stella Winkele, librarian for the past six years. Her special contribution is the building up of the excellent reference library. Since her resignation at the end of the first semester, Mrs. Alta Erb has served as acting librarian in the absence of the librarian-elect, J. W. Cressman, who will assume office next fall.

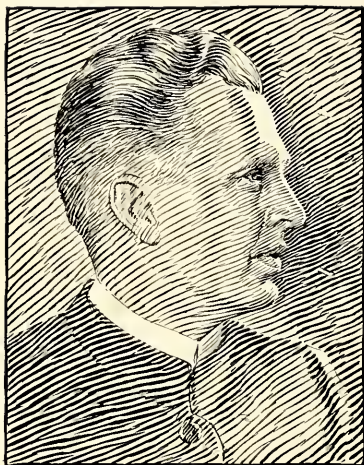

The Cabin

The site of the Cabin, a two-acre plot along the Elkhart River, was purchased by members of the faculty. The construction of the building was made possible by the Class of 1941. The Cabin has a large outside porch, a spacious main room, and a kitchen. The interior is finished in knotty pine. Hardwood chairs for interior use were provided by the student body this year. The extensive plot surrounding the Cabin has stimulated an interest in birdlore; a bird feeding station combined with an observation hut has been constructed. Lights have been installed on the river bank and exterior of the Cabin, making possible the playing of out-of-door games in the evening.

The uses of the Cabin have been many and varied—class socials, all-school socials, skating parties, and committee retreats. It affords a place of relaxation from the busy activities of campus life and the monotony of routine contacts. It is the place where one can retire to enjoy nature and the delights of meditation and reflection.

The Unprinted Curriculum

It is to be expected that men or women going to college are brought in contact with the history, literature, and science of their people so that when they leave college they will not be ignorant concerning the basic facts in American history and American life. That is a part of the printed curriculum of any college. But to me it is the unprinted curriculum which is of greater significance. If a freshman would come to me and say, "What's it all about? What am I really going to get out of college?" I would pass over most of these things and would say, "My friend, if you take advantage of what is open to you here you will find a good opportunity for self-development and self-discipline."

We, of course, do not give courses in self-development or self-discipline. We do not have a professor assigned to teach young men and young women how to exert upon themselves those controls which the intelligent man wishes to exert upon himself. This is to be done by indirect ways. But, I believe it is a very important part of the educational process. We have no quarrel with anyone who says the chief end of a college course is to become more intelligent. But I hope the self-development we believe in is social, aesthetic, and religious as well as intellectual.

Young Americans are accustomed on all college campuses to what we call the elective system. If my observation is accurate the elective system does not run after a student leaves college. Most of the courses in life are required courses. One of the great things education can do is to condition young men and women while they are in college for meeting outside that fence circumstances and situations that life presents to them. To do a job as well as you can; to find happiness under the discipline which society imposes upon you; to take advantage of the opportunities for social as well as intellectual development; to walk humbly not only before God but before your fellow man—these are some of the things which I think may some day be listed as making up the unprinted curriculum and as being a large part of what Goshen College thinks education should be.

Education as an Instrument

Life is basically a matter of goals. We live for great purposes, and life attains richness of meaning only in terms of the greatness and quality of our goals.

Education also is but a tool to accomplish chosen objectives. In itself it has no meaning. Some may seek a college education merely for the sake of a degree and the prestige it brings, but serious students educate themselves because they desire to achieve worthy purposes. Certainly boards of trustees, instructors, and supporters provide education because they believe it is an instrument to accomplish purposes.

Goshen College has meaning only in terms of goals. Hence I would say to students: Goshen College is an instrument in your hands, but it can serve you only if you have purposes to fulfil. It is not sufficient that Goshen College should have purposes; you also must have them. You must find, in all the richness of privilege which college offers, areas of experience and value which mean something to you because they serve high purposes. You may have chosen your goals before coming to college, or you may have found them in college, but you must find them if Goshen College is to serve you. In the light of clearly held purposes, college becomes a splendid instrument, its courses and activities focus where you want them to focus, and college days become full of meaning and value.

The faculty of Goshen College are happy to serve you because they, like you find in the educational process on this campus an instrument for the accomplishment of great goals. They share with you in seeking every experience which may contribute to setting the goals high and achieving their fulfilment.

In order to provide for the women of Kulp Hall the experience of cooperative planning and living, a "Standards Committee" was organized in the fall of 1940. This committee is composed of two girls from each academic class elected annually by the class, and the Dean of Women. It meets each week to consider problems relative to dormitory living and to decide upon ways and means of improving the common life in Kulp Hall. In the past two years the "Standards Committee" has sponsored successfully the renovation of a basement room in the dormitory which now serves the girls as a kitchenette and affords them many happy hours. The committee has also arranged for social functions in the dormitory to which they have invited non-resident women students in an effort to bring them into the family circle.

The Coffman Hall Council was reorganized in 1939 by the Personnel Director. It is an elective body composed of two members from each academic class under the chairmanship of the student proctor. The purpose of the Council is to assist in the administration of the dormitory and to provide for social and other dormitory functions. Since the Personnel Director became President of the College, the Personnel Assistant has been faculty sponsor for the Coffman Hall Council. Problems concerning dormitory administration and improvement are first discussed in the Council where decisions are made. These decisions are later presented to all the men at a house meeting. Such improvements as fluorescent lights in the social room and the washrooms and the equipping of the reception room were sponsored by the Council this year.

The chief values in having these organizations on the campus lie in the opportunities they afford students to share in dormitory government and in the better understanding engendered between students and the Administration.

Senior Class History

Freshman Days are fun to remember, even though they were a headache when we entered college back in 1938. First there was the bewildering process of trying to remember the names of professors—then the hours of tests. There were ninety-six of us then, and we found that our class included students from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Oregon, and Pennsylvania. We were happy to get "Prof" Yoder as our sponsor, and we have kept him ever since. Our freshman officers were: president, Harold Oyer; vice-president, Clarence Burck; secretary, Lois Erb; treasurer, Jacob Beer; and historian, Freda Maust. The class was quite interested in athletics, and the "A" team won the basketball tournament. In debate, Clara Lehman and Genevieve Warner won the Freshman-Sophomore Women's contest. Our spring outing was held at Lake Mawasee.

In 1939, sixty-six of us came back as sophomores. We felt rather important this year as we knew our whereabouts and could put on "airs." That was an enjoyable year! We watched the new library from foundation to completion and used the old reading room in the Administration Building to advantage as a social gathering place. We had our fall outing in a log cabin in the New Paris hills and a scavenger hunt at Shirley Morton's home in Bristol. The spring outing will be especially remembered by those who were caught in a cloudburst while in boats on Tippecanoe Lake. Our sophomore officers were: president, Glenn Esh; vice-president, Glenn Widmer; secretary, Clara Lehman; and treasurer, Waldo Kines.

During our junior year, we saw "Goshen" become a fully-accredited college. The forty-two members were led by our president, Glenn Widmer. Other officers were Glenn Esh, Mary Zehr, Leonard Lichti, and Verna Oyer. Our first outing was held at Graveyard Inn where we roasted "Angels on Horseback," enjoyed a German band, and told ghost stories. The seniors "snuck" unknown and were entertained at a banquet patterned after their simple tastes. A program with Royce Engle as toastmaster, sneak plans by Fannie Schrock, and a dissertation on peaches by Jake Heatwole kept the audience rollicking in laughter. In the spring, "Prof" Yoder entertained a motley-colored group at his home—he asked the class to come dressed as the person they had planned to be when a child. At the Junior-Senior banquet we sailed the seas with Odysseus and ate roast lamb with all the trimmings. On the day after exams, we relaxed and sunbathed at Lake Webster, and were aroused only by that exciting hunt for a key.

Our senior year had many high-lights. Frequent meetings on the athletic field kept others guessing about our "sneak" plans. Our officers were: president, Milton Brunk; vice-president, Harold Mishler; secretary, Pearl Kauffmann; treasurer, Gladys Widmer; and historian, Ruth Brenneman. Enjoyable experiences of this year were a barn frolic, our fall outing, and a parlor party. We "snuck" on February 4, amid ice and snow, and a down-pour of rain. Our graduation day approaches, and we look forward to it as a day of parting from a dear friend.

The following who were not on the campus this year will receive degrees as members of the Class 1942: Tillie Garwood, B.S., South Bend, Indiana; Nettie Glick, B.S., Sugar Creek, Ohio; Elizabeth Blank, B.S., West Liberty, Ohio; Fannie Schrock, B.A., Albany, Oregon; and Annabelle Troyer B.A., Fisher, Illinois.

In Remembrance

My Lord,
Today I walked in the fairest place—
Green pastures,
Yes, and still waters.
The clearest water—I could see the yellow plants
Wavering across the floor of the creek.
And I—I had to think of Thee, My Shepherd.

In the thick grass
Among the brown leaves in the wooded places
Mere violets.

My Lord, when the sun was red
I came to a thorn-apple tree
In blossom.
I pricked my hands—so sharp were the thorns,
And my hair caught in the branches.
I picked enough—just
Just enough thorns for a crown.
And thought of Thee.

—Myriam Sieber.

I Shall Not Fear

"You shall never know a fear," you promised me,
"No monsters in the shadows of the moon,
No whispering footsteps in the dusk or early dawn,
No threat in rustling grass in sun or noon."

I shall walk with head held high to wear a crown,
A coronet of jewels and rich design.
I shall sleep in peace that knows no troubled dreams.
I shall not be afraid: your pledge is mine.

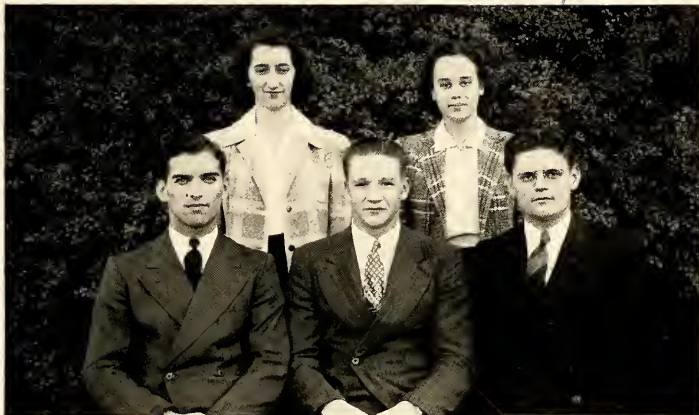

—Genevieve Warner.

When I review that damned hour
Which with the blood of man is cursed
Cold sweat pours forth from every pore,
And all my bones and muscles freeze.

CLASS of '43

Junior Class History

One hundred and ten freshmen started on their college career in September, 1939. Dr. Willard Smith was chosen as class sponsor. The many social events of the year helped everyone to get better acquainted, and many lasting friendships were made.

In the fall of 1940, sixty-seven sophomores returned to the campus. The continued enthusiasm of the class was manifested as its members won debates, the Peace Oratorical Contest, and the softball and basketball tournaments.

"I am a junior" was the thought of forty-four students as they returned to Goshen College in 1941. The first meeting of the year was for the election of officers and the laying of the sure for the seniors. The fall outing was held near Benton on a crispy moonlight night. Gunden's truck, as a mode of transportation, helped to get the party started at a lively rate. Nelson Springer, an adopted junior, added greatly to the fun of the evening by singing a solo with vocal accompaniment. In spite of a missing rotor and not-to-be-found car keys, the juniors arrived home long before the seniors, who were said to "have sunk." The seniors finally managed to sneak on a blustery February night during a voice recital and a basketball game. The Junior-Senior basketball team maintained its record again by winning the tournament. In addition to this, it emerged from another season of league play undefeated. The class suffered the loss of five outstanding men to C. P. S. camps. Carl Beck went to Sideling Hill a few weeks after school started, and Paul and Dennis Miller followed at Christmas time. Hugh King and Howard Kauffman have been stationed at Camp Marietta since Christmas. The Junior-Senior banquet, class outings, participation in the Class Day Program, and the editing of the Maple Leaf completed the many high-lights of the year.

Today

Today—

There's a first hint of spring,
Gay sunshine, peeps of blue sky,
Melting snows and soft mud.

But a skyground of gray-blue clouds threatens.
Darkness and forboding mutely speak
That all is not well
For spring.

Today—

There's a spirit of serenity,
Love and good will,
Security and happiness.

But a background of darkness
And evil and terror surround us
And all is not well.

—Bernice Meyer.

Sophomore Class History

One hundred students composed the enrollment of the class in the freshman year. Professor Sudermann was chosen as class sponsor. Many enjoyable experiences of that year will be remembered—a party in the gym, a picnic in Wyler's woods, and the class day outing at Sylvan Lake.

The sophomore class roll numbered sixty-eight. The first social event of this year was held at the Cabin on September 26. After supper everyone gathered around the fireplace for an informal sing. The representatives of the class in the Freshman-Sophomore Debate were Albert Miller and Wilfred Ulrich. Albert Miller and Fred Fletcher placed second and third, respectively, in the annual Peace Oratorical Contest. In softball, the Sophomore A team tied for second place. The basketball team also had a successful season.

With Thee

With Thee I am deeply happy,
Feel the warm earth's hopeful throbbing,
Laugh with others, but sorrow too,
Grasp and use each passing minute,
Loose my fears and selfish motives,
Live life with fullness and completeness,
So to Thee, I come!

—Thelma Miller.

Dear God, I feel so mixed-up inside,
Tests disturb me,
Hard work bores me,
The thought of my sins o'erpowers me.

Now, soft breezes make me calm,
Mistful flower-scents stir me,
The sun silently warms me
As I stand quietly with Thee.

Freshman Class History

One hundred and ten young people came from near and far to comprise the freshman class. During the first few days they took tests of various kinds and went to get-acquainted socials. Then followed the welcome of the Y. V. C. A., and the enthusiasm accompanying literary solicitation. The high-light of the first month was the Freshman Banquet held in the dining hall. The class took part in a large number of extra-curricular activities. The football team won the tournament. William Zentz and Arthur Weaver won the Freshman-Sophomore Debate, and other members proved their ability in the fields of music, art, and writing.

Metamorphosis

Dark on the hill,
Covered with snow.
A lone pine.
Slim sharp needles,
Ice coated and smooth.
Green needles.
Dawn, and little clouds
Tinted with the light.
A glorious sun!
Tiny snowflake mirrors
Gleaming in the sun.
A shining pine.

—Gladys Graber.

River Magic

We sat on the old swinging bridge
And looked down into that fascinating stream:
Quicksilver fish
And jumping frogs,
Mossy clams
And fallen logs.
Great big crawdads,
Floating twigs,
Waterbugs spinning
Like whirligigs.
Shells and snails,
Seaweed green,
Shiny stones
With sand between.
Aren't picnics at the river fun?

—Gladys Graber.

Summer School

In various ways the Summer School is unique. The student body is smaller—the number enrolled last summer was seventy-one. These may be classified into several general groups: (1) regular students who need additional courses to complete requirements, (2) former students who teach school during the winter and come back to work toward a degree, (3) other persons who wish to pursue their interests in various subjects. Obviously the wide variety of experiences of these students contributes much in class discussion and in out-of-class contacts.

The courses offered in the summer are not so numerous, but since there are fewer students, the offering is in most cases sufficiently extensive. Any course is offered for which there is general demand.

Summer students have access to the dormitories, library, Health Center, and laboratory equipment just as do regular students.

Student activities are provided for and encouraged. Committees are selected to supervise the various aspects of campus life. A devotional committee arranges for the regular student devotionals and other religious functions. Recreation is provided by occasional socials under the direction of the social committee. Athletics are organized informally, but a large number of activities are open for student participation. Chorus work provides opportunity for those of musical ability to exercise and develop their talents, and a public program is given at the close of the term.

Only those who have already shared the various experiences of campus life can appreciate the contribution of the summer session in the preparation for life and its enrichment.

The Alumni Association of Goshen College was organized in 1900 and incorporated in 1911. The Association is managed by a board of eighteen directors, six of whom are elected for a period of three years at each annual meeting held during the Commencement season. Membership is granted to anyone who has attended Goshen College for one year and whose class has graduated. Present membership totals about two thousand.

The most recent demonstrations of Alumni loyalty have come through the Memorial Library and the Alumni Division of the Goshen College Accreditation Plan. Four-fifths of the funds used in construction of the library were contributed by Alumni. During 1941 the N. C. A. required Goshen College to spend $2,500 for library books above the regular budget because of the low rating in book holdings. More than two-thirds of these funds were contributed by Alumni in addition to their contributions in the Accreditation Plan. Following their motto, "Power through Unity," Alumni have been contributing from three to five thousand dollars annually to the Accreditation Plan.

Alumni are kept informed about activities of the college and of their fellows through the Alumni News-Letter, published four times a year by the college and edited by Professor Umbile.

Besides the annual banquet at the College during the Commencement season, the following local alumni reunions are held annually: The Chicago Alumni reunion, the Illinois Alumni reunion, the Northeastern Ohio Alumni reunion, the Eastern Pennsylvania Alumni reunion, and the Goshen Alumni reunion.

Any youth of today, surveying the ball of elements with which he is to work all his life, might well say, "This is my world, and what a world!" What a chaos of hate, ambition, split hopes, forgotten ideals! And this is the world out of which youth is to derive life. This is the world which youth is to quietly set in order, calling forth patterns of orderly living. What, who, will set the whole system right? Through the haze of twenty confused centuries comes the winsome answer, "Be of good cheer—I have overcome the world!" This has always been the answer, but it has been offered with more or less timidity on the part of those who knew Christ. Even today half the world doesn't know the secret. To make known to a sick, bewildered world this Christ who can organize chaos into cosmos,—this is one of the purposes of the "Y."

College youth looks at himself, and there he sees a microcosm. If this little world is patterned after the big world about him, he finds in himself a disorderly array of ideals, social patterns, physical needs, religious inquiries, mental conflicts—all struggling to organize into a useful life. What one thing will bring early phase of his life into its proper relationship with the others? For nearly two thousand years there has been one answer—Christ, the Great "Least Common Denominator" whose influence gives to early experience its rightful evaluation; who binds up our apparently antagonistic activities into a meaningful whole. Christ of the athletic field, Christ of the chapel, Christ of the social, Christ of the classroom—this is the Man we want to know. That students may know this Great Integrator, the "Y" functions as a religious organization in both the religious and the commonly-called "secular" avenues of school life, attempting to fulfill its highest purpose.

Membership Committee

This committee has as its objective the inclusion of every student in the membership of the Y. P. C. A. Each new member is encouraged to find a definite place of service in the organization in order that he may thereby receive a definite contribution to his Christian experience. It is the work of this committee to publish the official school Handbook, which orients the student to campus life, customs, rules, and regulations. Courtesy Week in chapel, the Big Sister tradition, and the purchasing of magazines for the dormitory social rooms are other projects of the committee.

(Not on panel: Weyburn Graff, Y. M. Chairman, second semester.)

Finance Committee

It is the task of this committee to make and manage the operating budget. Two financial drives were held during the year. The first one, in October, was a solicitation of funds for the general expenses of the Y. P. C. A. The second, in the spring, was a missionary drive and the money raised was given to relief and missionary work in China. The response of students this year was good, and the goals of both drives were attained. An indirect benefit at these drives was the cultivation of the Christian's privilege of systematic giving.

Devotional Committee

On Thursday of every week, the regular chapel period is in charge of students. The devotional committee arranges these programs, which are usually held separately by the men and women. When a guest speaker is present, or a special program is planned, a conjoint meeting is called. The themes of the separate devotionals vary from the purely devotional type to question bees and open forum discussions on practical problems of the student. The separate meetings give opportunity for student expression, and they are influential in leadership development. Students are encouraged to hold a private devotional period daily.

Extension Committee

The Extension Committee has as its three-fold purpose the bringing of the Gospel to the lost, the edification of those already saved, and the cheering of the poor and needy. On Sunday afternoons, houses of inmates and aged people in North and East Goshen are visited, and a ray of sunshine is scattered through song, scripture reading, and prayer. The message of salvation is brought to the men of Elkhart County Jail every Sunday afternoon also, and still others go to the White Cross Mission in Elkhart to conduct a service for transients. The gospel teams sent out during the Christmas season are a part of this committee's program.

Social Committee

A sound, wholesome program of social activities is a definite requirement on the campus of a Christian college. Some of the activities of the year which were directed by this committee were the Men's Mixer, Girls' Gimble Party, Get-acquainted Social, and Mid-winter Social. The greatest task was the arranging of the annual Homecoming events, especially the banquet and subsequent program. Occasional "dress-ups" and after-dinner programs were conducted on Wednesday nights. Dinners were held after Sunday evening meetings, and invitations to socials were exchanged between the two dormitories. Campus contacts offer a very good opportunity for a mastery of the social graces.

Mission Study Committee

It is the work of this group to stimulate interest in city and foreign missions. Pictures, maps, and literature concerning the activities of the church at home and abroad were posted on the Mission Bulletin Board in the Administration Building. Speakers were secured for the Mission Drive Week. Since China was the object of attention this year, several former workers in that field were obtained. National Day of Prayer was observed according to the plans of this committee. The committee was responsible for morning devotions in the dining hall the first semester, and for weekly prayer meetings the second semester.

Back Row: Milo Albrecht, Stanley Swartzendruber, Orval Schrock, Pearl Kaufmann, Elizabeth Leitner. (Not on panel: Viola Zehr, V. M. Chairman, second semester.)

Bible Study Committee

The cause of Christ will not be effectively furthered until there is an intense interest in Bible study. To increase that interest is the purpose of the Bible Study Committee. During the first semester the committee sponsored weekly prayer meetings in the dormitories. Throughout the second semester they had charge of morning devotions in the dining hall. To aid in private devotions, the booklet, The Upper Room, was furnished each student. A Bible Study Week was also arranged for, and a special chapel speaker came to the campus for the occasion.

Church Relations Committee

This committee reminds the student of the distinctive principles which the Mennonite Church upholds. These reminders take the form of letters, posters, and special programs. The committee assists in welcoming and providing for guests at such times as Homecoming, Literary Convention, and Commencement. A special Conformity Week was conducted with local speakers in charge. Several new posters were carried out this year. A map was drawn, locating all Mennonite churches in Elkhart County; a good-will letter was sent to many of the pastors of the churches represented by students; and a steady stream of correspondence was kept flowing between the committee and the various C. P. S. camps.

Debate Division "A"

Several factors combined to abbreviate the debate program during the current year. The sabbatical leave of the professor of speech eliminated all speech courses during the first semester. The loss of some of the upper-classmen because of the Selective Service Draft crowded the extra-curricular program of the remaining upper-classmen to such an extent that they did not feel able to carry the extra burden of preparing for debate. Another limiting factor was the failure of women teams to organize for debate this year.

The only intercollegiate debates held this year were in connection with the twelfth annual invitational debate tournament at Manchester College, February 27-28. Goshen College entered two teams in the "A" Division, one affirmative and one negative. The affirmatives were Art Weaver and Bill Zentz; the negatives, William Hostettler and Albert Miller. The affirmative team won decisions over Rutgers University and the University of Detroit.

Albert Miller was the only debater in the "A" Division who had previous inter-collegiate debating experience—the other three were freshmen. They entered the Manchester tournament with no other experience than that afforded by the Novice Debate Tournament at Indiana University in mid-February, where each team won one decision: the affirmative defeating Indiana State Teachers College, and the negative, Wittenberg College.

Debate Division "B"

During the first semester, Dr. Carl Kreider assisted the debate squad in a study of the question: "Resolved, that the Federal Government should regulate by Law all Labor Unions in the United States." Men's teams representing the freshman and sophomore classes clashed in an interclass contest in December—Albert Miller and Wilfred Ulrich composed the sophomore team, and Art Weaver and Bill Zentz, the freshman team. A judging committee composed of three faculty members awarded the decision to the freshmen.

This preliminary tilt usually prepares the younger members of the squad for the intercollegiate debate season, but this year some of the participants in this contest were needed to complete teams for the "A" Division. Hence the members of the "B" Division teams went to the Manchester Tournament with no previous debating experience.

Two Goshen teams were entered in the "B" Division at the Manchester College tournament this year. The affirmative team was Ralph Krabill and Gail Yoder, and the negative, Eugene Hess and Walter Mumaw. Only one member of this group, Eugene Hess, had had experience in high school debating. The negative team won two decisions, with a counter-proposition advocating profit-sharing in industry in order to eliminate labor difficulties arising through labor organizations as conducted at present. They defeated teams from Findlay College and Calvin College.

Millard Lind, Peace Oratorical Contest winner

Forensics

Five men, Albert Miller, Robert Hess, Millard Lind, Fred Fletcher, and Ernest Shank, entered the Peace Oratorical Contest held December 12, 1941. A faculty judging committee awarded first place to Millard Lind who will represent the College in the State Peace Oratorical Contest to be held at Manchester College in May. Albert Miller placed second and Fred Fletcher third.

As in former years, the Freshman Men's Discussion Contest was conducted as an intersociety event between the Adelpian and Aurora societies. Five men entered the contest—three Adelpians and two Auroras. Bill Zentz, Adelpian, won the contest. Don McCammon, Aurora, placed second; Walter Munaw, Aurora, third; and Eugene Hess, Adelpian, fourth. Waldo Stalter, '27, annually donates ten dollars for this contest to be distributed in prizes of four dollars, three, two, and one.

Other forensic contests of the college year are the Men's Discussion, an Adelpian-Aurora contest sponsored by the Aurora Literary society; the Women's Discussion, an Avon-Vesperian contest sponsored by the Vesperian society; the Poetry Reading, an Avon-Vesperian contest sponsored by the Avon society; and the Freshman Men's Peace Oratorical, an Adelpian-Aurora contest. Three members of the Class of 1901 donate annually prizes of ten dollars, five, and one for winners in this latter event.

An unusually large number of students who attend Goshen College are interested in music. The Collegiate Chorus offers an excellent opportunity for all who wish to take advantage of singing in a group. Our churches need better singing and this is the place where students may benefit from the best that experienced leaders have to offer. The Collegiate Chorus was fortunate this year in having Paul Erb conduct their practices. Professor Erb has had considerable experience in directing and did excellent work with the group. Miss Mary Oyer was the capable accompanist.

The chorus met four times a week for thirty-minute practices. During the first part of the year several selections from the "Master Chorists" were studied. Much of the early winter was spent in practicing Handel's "Messiah." To quite a large number of the students, the choruses in this oratorio meant some real work. However, as the Christmas season approached, more and more enthusiasm was shown during the periods of practice. The last few weeks before the Christmas holiday found the Collegiate Chorus practicing with the A Cappella Chorus.

After Christmas, the chorus worked again on the numbers practiced earlier in the year, and added to its repertoire other selections from church and classical music. A spring program was prepared and rendered at the college and at a few surrounding churches. The chorus also participated in the program of the Indiana Literary Societies.

Membership in the Collegiate Chorus is thought of as a stepping-stone to the A Cappella Chorus. Here's hoping!

Avon Literary Society

Presidents - - - - - Edna Good, Louise Voder

The Avons began the year by presenting a prophetic skit on how the national situation will affect Goshen College girls. To their old enrollment of thirty-four they added twenty-seven new members. According to custom, the Avon-Aurora outing was planned. The day set was so inclement that all four literaries retreated to the dining hall for a picnic supper. Several weeks later the outing was planned again. A repetition of bad weather necessitated a quick revision of plans, resulting in an all-literary basketball game followed by a short program.

The Avon-Aurora Public Program, big event of the year, was given on Friday, December 5. A unique feature of this program was the new method of announcing the numbers—lantern slides done in red letters.

Interest in the meetings was maintained by variety in the programs. There were freshmen skits, conjoint meetings, and a "Stop Hour," during which members caught up on their correspondence. The general aim this year was to follow, on a small scale, the attempt of the College to become better acquainted with the community. Several local speakers participated in the programs. The Avons believe that literary societies contribute much to college life in creating a spirit of genuine and good-natured competition.

Aurora Literary Society

Presidents - - - - - Harold Mishler, Russell Krabill

The Auroras initiated twenty-three new members into the society this year, increasing the membership to fifty-three. The importance of living up to the motto "Forward" was especially stressed and every member pledged his loyalty anew.

Numerous conjoint meetings were held with the Avons, the sister society. The abundance of talent in the two societies made possible the large number of programs with which one society entertained the other. The best demonstration of the musical and poetic talents of the society was the Avon-Aurora Public Program.

The Auroras were victorious in softball and tied their competitors in football. Several accomplished musicians joined the society this year and their contributions were appreciated widely, both in and outside the immediate literary circle. The speech and oratorical honors were upheld also. One of the members won the Peare Oratorical Contest, and others were outstanding in debate.

Vesperian Literary Society

Presidents - - - - - Freda Maust, Esther Hartzler

Forty girls joined old members last fall to make a total of eighty-two Vesperians. The usual fall outing with the Adelprians was postponed because of bad weather, and a basketball game was played instead. The regular programs were interspersed by conjoint meetings with the Avons and Adelprians.

The Vesperian spirit of service was put to practice this year by making candy for the Civilian Public Service Camps. The girls also made curtains for the library at Camp Bluffton. Instead of the customary exchange of gifts, Vesperians and Adelprians bought toys for the needy children in the North Goshen vicinity.

Vesperian and Adelprian talent was merged in an entirely original public program in March. An event later in the year was the appearance of yellow and white headscarfs, worn by all Vesperians. The events of the past year contributed much in building the society and in making the members better students on the campus.

Adelpkian Literary Society

Presidents - - - - - Glenn Esh, Ethan Horst

The Adelpkians opened the school year with the same enthusiasm that has been characteristic of the society since its beginning. Twenty-six new members were added, and they gave several programs early in the year.

Programs were exchanged with the Vesperians, and the two societies entered the creative field by presenting an entirely original musical and literary program in the spring.

The society contributed much to the intellectual and social aspects of college life. It gave individuals a chance to express their own opinions; it stimulated their creative interests; and it indirectly encouraged its members in the development of a well-rounded personality.

In music, the Adelpkians claimed two organized male quartets, whose services were in great demand on and off the campus. Several good athletes joined the society this year and kept enthusiasm at a high pitch. In every phase of campus life and activity, the Adelpkians manifested the spirit of their motto, "We learn to do by doing."

German Language Club

President - - - - -	Howard Kauffman
Vice President - - - - -	Lester Guengerich
Secretary - - - - -	Priscilla Miller
Treasurers - - - - -	Eugene Greenwall, Genevieve Troyer

The German Language Club is a well-known and highly-esteemed organization. To the members of the club it offers an enjoyable monthly meeting with fellow students interested in German. It gives expression to, and stimulates the appreciation of German language, literature, and song.

The membership and interest this year have been excellent. There have been several especially good meetings during the season. A Halloween Party was sponsored in October. The members congregated at the cabin which was decorated with jack-o'-lanterns and orange and black streamers. Through the efforts of Mr. Sudermann a men's chorus was organized. They rendered several numbers at the club meetings. The German Band also contributed a few numbers.

The Christmas program was impressive. While the song "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht" was being sung, the lighted-taper ceremony was traditionally enacted.

One of the events in the spring was "Der Deutsche Tisch," held in the dining hall. A new feature was the production of some scenes from "Wilhelm Tell" by the second year students.

Several "sings" were held throughout the season, with special features at a number of them. The life and works of Johann Wolfgang Goethe were discussed at one of the later meetings in the year.

Le Cercle Français is an organization which promotes an interest in French literature, life, and current events. Miss Lois Gunden, former sponsor of this organization, is engaged in relief work in France at the present time, and from time to time she sent first-hand information which helped to maintain a lively interest in the programs. In the absence of Miss Gunden, Mrs. Charles Shank served as sponsor this year.

Monthly meetings were held, at which many of the topics of discussion centered around the art and music of France. An occasional spelling bee added interest to the meetings—the singing of French songs was also an important part of the programs. The Christmas party held at the home of Mrs. Shank was the chief social attraction of the year. This organization is a bit different from all others because the social committee serves refreshments at every meeting.

This year an effort was put forth to acquaint members with the current problems and developments of modern France. A French literature week was sponsored, during which students were reminded of the great literary contributions of France. A display table was set up in the library, and each day the works of a different writer were shown.

The staff was eager to get to work on the ideas which they had formulated last summer. Dean Wender, sponsor of the annual, called the first meeting of the staff and advised each member concerning his duties. Important discussions followed and finally led to the adoption of the classical-book style for this year's Maple Leaf. It was also decided to give the book a religious emphasis and to dedicate it to the church forefathers. Professor Sprunger, who was enthusiastic about the style and theme of the book, has given invaluable assistance to the art editor.

The busy days of picture taking confirmed the fact that the book was actually being started. At the same time the laying-out of the dummy transferred the thoughts of the staff from pages in imagination to pages in reality! After several weeks, the final dummy arrived from the engraving company, approved and double-checked. As pictures came in, they were mounted on their proper pages and the dummy began to assume form. The business managers took advantage of the time to sell ads and to check the budget. Cooperating with them were the students who entered the subscription campaign.

Then came the last few weeks before all copy was due. The printer received all copy on time, advertisements were collected for, the budget was met, and the Maple Leaf of 1942 was a reality. To recall the many experiences of the staff would be to recall memories of long hours of work late at night and on Saturdays, pleasant interludes of refreshments, moments of laughter and also ill humor, and above all, constant desires to make the production of this year's annual an experience of true "culture for service" for every member of the staff.

The Goshen College Record, bi-monthly student publication of Goshen College, is justly proud of its year. Students and alumni agree that the staff has succeeded in attaining the goals it set: to bring its readers the college news, highlights of world events, a bit of local "affairs," worthwhile editorials, sports headlines, and thought-provoking comments by the "Y" presidents.

Popular new slants included more pictures of college interest; the "Club Clearing House," a column into which all club news was collected; and a more prominent place for girls' athletics. The World News column followed, successfully, the policy of touching on all pertinent subjects, but emphasizing only one.

The event Editor Oyer will remember longest, in relation to the Record, is the fate of the first issue. The material had been written, turned in, checked, typed, set, and proof-read. Corrections were made, and the paper went to press. Three beautiful copies rolled off the press before the blow fell. The type had not been locked, so it "rained" over several rooms. Three days later, approximately the same Record was safely carried homeward by a nervous and weary editor.

Another "Red-Letter Day" in the life of the Record was the day of the Homecoming Banquet. As the throng filled the dining hall, it discovered, at the end of the hall, a large replica of the Record, done to accurate scale, announcing various Homecoming events. Further observation revealed copies of the Record used for decorative purposes, and miniature Records served as programs and menus.

Secretarial Course Students

During the school year of 1938-39, Goshen College offered for the first time an organized one-year secretarial course. A few students registered that first year. The next year eleven students took the complete course, followed by nine registrants during the year 1940-41. This year, 1941-42, nineteen girls are enrolled in the complete course as outlined for the secretarial certificate. All but three of these girls live on the campus. They are distributed geographically as follows: Pennsylvania 3, Indiana 11, Ohio 4, Illinois 1. These students are members of the freshman class and participate in all the regular extra-curricular activities of the college as an integral part of the student body.

The prescribed secretarial course offers general preparation in the skills that are required of the average stenographer and secretary. This includes specific courses in typewriting, shorthand, English, accounting, office practices and procedures. In addition to these courses, the student is permitted to choose one course each semester from the regular college curriculum.

Justification of this secretarial curriculum at Goshen College lies in the fact that there are girls who wish a year's experience in a church college with its religious, cultural, and social privileges and who also wish to acquire marketable skills. Of the last two years' graduates, all but two are now employed in offices in their local communities.

Mennonite Historical Society

Organized in 1924, the Mennonite Historical Society has been active in promoting interest and research in Anabaptist-Mennonite history, and Mennonite thought and current affairs. The entire full-time faculty, together with a number of students, constitute the membership of the Society. The business of the group is cared for by a board of directors, nine faculty members and three students.

In 1927 the Society began to publish for Goshen College "The Mennonite Quarterly Review." This journal has attracted favorable comment both in America and abroad. Numerous universities and libraries are on its mailing list.

In 1931 the Society established its publication series, "Studies in Anabaptist and Mennonite History." The following volumes have been published: 1, H. S. Bender: Two Centuries of American Mennonite Literature; 2, John Horsch: The Butterian Brethren; 3, Harry F. Weber: Centennial History of the Mennonites of Illinois; 4, S. C. Yoder: For Conscience Sake; 5, John S. Umble: Ohio Mennonite Sunday Schools; 6, H. S. Bender: Conrad Grebel (to appear in 1942).

The president of the Society, Dean Bender, has been active in establishing, and enlarging the holdings of, the Mennonite Historical Library. Today this is one of the richest collections of Mennonitica in the world. The Society is also fortunate in having an able historian at work cataloging the historical library, Dr. Robert Friedmann, formerly of Vienna, Austria.

Robert Friedmann, Ph. D., Cataloguer, 1941-42

Mennonite Historical Library

Four centuries of rich history have given Mennonites of today a great heritage, but the fullness of this heritage is not widely known even among Mennonites. To provide the materials necessary for the study and evaluation of this heritage is the purpose of the Mennonite Historical Library at Goshen College. Established in 1900 by the Alumni Association, it has grown until today it is one of the richest libraries of Mennonite history in the world, containing over two thousand volumes and a large manuscript collection.

The greatest handicap in the use of these valuable materials has been the lack of a thorough, scientific catalogue. The academic year 1941-42 will mark a great step forward in this respect, since a special grant of eight hundred dollars from the Oberlander Trust of the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation of Philadelphia is making the desired catalogue possible. With this grant it has been possible to secure the services of Dr. Robert Friedmann as cataloguer. The service of Dr. Friedmann is particularly valuable since he is a specialist in Anabaptist history thoroughly familiar with the German language, and spent the past year in work in the library as Honorary Fellow of Goshen College in Anabaptist history preparing a history of Mennonite literature in Europe. He will complete the cataloguing by September 1, 1942, and prepare a mimeographed catalogue of the Historical Library holdings. A union catalogue is also being prepared to include the holdings of the Mennonite Historical libraries at Bethel College, Bluffton College, and the Mennonite Publishing House at Scottsdale, Pennsylvania.

The Audubon Society exists for those students who wish to cultivate an interest in bird life and nature in general. The organization sponsors several hikes during the year. These are taken early in the morning and faculty members usually accompany the group in order to identify birds, plants, and trees. The sites most frequently visited are the thickets bordering the river race and Gra-Roy Drive. The usual procedure is to divide the large group into several smaller ones and to appoint guides for each of these. A hot breakfast in the woods completes the hike.

Last year the members of the society began the erection of a bird hut on the cabin grounds. This year the finishing touches were applied and feeders and wind shelters were added. During the winter months quite a variety of birds was attracted to this shelter because of the weekly feedings. The hut provided an excellent opportunity for students to observe the birds at close range.

Home Economics Club

President	Pearl Kauffmann
Secretary	Mary Helen Voder

It is important that a nation's strength be maintained in time of stress and conflict. The home must be correctly founded and evaluated, for it is the bulwark of the nation. The members of the Home Economics Club strive to make the world a better place in which to live by encouraging more intelligent home living and by studying the problems which arise in its daily routine.

The first meeting of the year was a "roast" for old and prospective members. The second meeting was in charge of a representative of the Lennox China Company, who gave an illustrated lecture on the manufacturing of chinaware. At another meeting a panel discussion on nursery schools was conducted by Miss Florence Bender. A practical application of the principles of home economics was the banquet which the club members served to the Alumni Regional Directors. The proceeds from this banquet were used to buy curtains and draperies for the living and dining room in Science Hall. The ultimate purpose of every monthly meeting is to aid the members in developing a professional spirit.

Physical Education and Recreation

Directors - - - - - Mr. Gingerich, Miss Lambright

The school year 1941-42 at Goshen College was marked by the enthusiasm, pep, and vigor that is so characteristic of athletic students. Participation increased in almost all the major intra-mural sports, and the minor sports program was also enlarged. An increased budget, full time athletic director, three assistants, and increased faculty support, made possible a larger and more varied program for both men and women. The integration of the men's and women's departments provided access of facilities to both, with some duplication of educational materials and methods.

The aim of the department is not to develop supermen or wizards on the athletic field, but to give opportunity for all to use the facilities and guidance which are available. Every individual is to have the chance to develop his physical powers, recreate mentally, build recreation and health habits, develop positive character traits, and win friends. "Opportunities for all rather than for a select few" is the motto of the department.

During the first semester of the current year eighty-four boys were enrolled in required physical education courses. The freshman boys were divided into three classes according to skill and potential ability. There were three classes for sophomores and those upper-classmen who had not completed their required physical education. Class periods were used for instruction in sports fundamentals and strength and physical development. The intra-mural time was taken by scheduled games.

One hundred girls were enrolled in physical education classes. Their program was a modification of the boys' program and was adapted to differences in strength, endurance, and speed. Hiking, swimming, bicycling, badminton, speedball, basketball, and tennis are a few of the activities in class work and the intra-mural program.

Goshen College recognizes the latent possibilities of youth with its vigor and strength. In preparation for life's duties it is wise not to forget those recreational activities which contribute to the individual's development physically, mentally, and socially.

GOSHEN COLLEGE COUNCIL

Three years ago the Athletic Association of Goshen College felt the need for an organization that would give students the privilege of expressing themselves on matters pertaining to the athletic phase of the school program. It was suggested that an organization be formed, consisting of all students who had at some time been awarded a letter for athletic achievement. This organization is now known as the "G" Council.

The Council elects officers at the beginning of the school year and meets at various times to discuss athletic rules and regulations, and any problems that arise from time to time. Sport schedules are arranged for and supported. Through the voice of the Council the Athletic Director senses the desires of the student body, and the intramural program is worked out accordingly. It is the desire of the Council to promote a well-rounded program of athletics so that every student who desires can participate in one or more sports with a reasonable degree of success.

The Women's Athletic Association sponsors a recreational program which provides competition in many athletic events—basketball, softball, volleyball, soccer, track, tennis, badminton, ping pong, archery, shuffleboard, and horseshoe. During the winter months snow-balling, tobogganing and ice-skating are added. Tournaments are held in team games, and perpetual tournaments in individual games—a championship game is played in both systems.

A point system has been set up and serves as a criterion for the awarding of letters. Letters are presented to the ten girls ranking highest in the point system. A white sweater with a purple "G" is awarded to the student with the highest number of points. Each member of the Council is the chairman of a specific athletic activity. Due to the unusual rainy season in the fall, the softball tournament was played off in the spring. Basketball playing was of a superior quality this year and is no doubt the number one activity in the women's sports' program.

Junior-Senior, Basketball Champions

Created fifty years ago as a new form of recreation, basketball lives on as the major sport in the intramural athletic program of Goshen College. Competition was keen and the thrill of close scores kept spectators on their feet at many games. The Junior-Senior team emerged undefeated, having won its third consecutive championship.

Bible School

Through instruction and guidance in the study of the Scriptures, Goshen College's oldest division seeks to deepen personal spiritual life and prepare for effective service in the church. The classroom is the major scene of activity, but not the only one; students teach in The North Goshen Sunday School, do visitation and home department work, conduct jail services, give programs in churches and missions, and distribute Christian literature.

Freshmen take the divisional course, "Introduction to Christianity," during their first semester in Goshen College. The sophomore course is entitled, "Fundamentals of the Christian Faith," and is intended to ground the student in the great doctrines of God's Word. Students are further encouraged to elect at least one Bible course each year. Four-year students earning twenty-four semester hours of credit in Bible secure a college major in that field. Full time Bible students taking the four-year Bachelor of Theology course are required to secure at least sixty hours credit in Bible. For those interested in a shorter period of preparation the Bible School offers both One year, and Two year Christian Workers' Courses. A special Ministers' course was also offered in 1941-42.

Graduates of the Bible School have entered various fields of service. Some are ministers and mission workers in this country, others are missionaries or relief workers abroad. It is highly gratifying to see these graduates serving Christ in the church which has created and is supporting Goshen College.

Winter Bible School

The forty-second annual Winter Bible School of Goshen College was held between January 5 and February 13, climaxed by the Christian Life Conference from February 13 to 15. Seventy-two students were enrolled, with states represented as follows: Indiana, 34; Ohio, 25; Illinois, 5; Michigan, 4; Pennsylvania, 2; Iowa, 1; Oregon, 1. These figures represent a decrease of twenty-five per cent from the average for the last three years. This decrease is explained by the fact that numerous prospective students were eligible for the draft and that exceptionally large numbers of young people are gainfully employed in domestic and industrial work.

A new aspect of the work was the cooperation between the Goshen Winter Bible School and the Canton (Ohio) Bible School. In order to meet the emergencies occasioned by the war and defense programs the Canton School agreed to cooperate with Goshen for the current year. As a result three of the Canton teachers served on the staff. The full time instructors were D. A. Yoder, Elkhart, Indiana; E. W. Royer, Orrville, Ohio; O. N. Johns, Canton, Ohio; E. E. Burkhardt, Goshen; and A. J. Hostettler, Canton, Ohio. A course was also offered by each of the following college instructors: S. C. Yoder, W. S. Bender, Paul Abinger, W. E. Yoder, W. F. Wartzler, Olive Wyse, and Mary Royer.

Foreign Missions Fellowship

President	- - - - -	Willard Lind
Vice President	- - - - -	Ruth Zook
Secretary-Treasurer	- - - - -	Adella Brunk

One Sunday afternoon each month, a group of students gather in the Bible room to study some phase of foreign missions. This group is interested in learning the history of foreign missions, in becoming acquainted with the problems of the mission field, and in keeping informed on current mission news. To stimulate such an interest is the purpose of the Foreign Missions Fellowship. In addition to the regular meeting, the Fellowship presents one program each month for the Christian Workers' Band.

India was the subject of study this year. "Missionaries who are alumni of Goshen College," and "What should the home church expect of the Indian Church?" were the themes of two discussions. At the other meetings the group entered into a detailed study of each individual Mennonite station in India.

A special project carried on by the Fellowship was the construction of a large map of the Indian Mennonite Mission Field. The map, which was made by members of the group in connection with the study of India, shows the location of each station and lists the missionaries stationed there. Its use by the group has contributed much to a clearer conception of the field.

No doubt some members of this group will some day be engaged in foreign mission work. Some will find their life work in other spheres of activity. To all, however, the needs presented and the inspiration received through this organization will be an ever-ringing challenge to obey Christ's command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel."

Gospel Teams

Southeastern Gospel Team:—David Byler, Robert Byler, Junger Frantz, James Byler.

Northeastern Gospel Team:—Quartet: Warren Leatherman, Harold Oyer, Robert Studer, John Eichert. Speakers: Harold Mishler, leader; Edwin Alderfer; Millard Lind.

Illinois Gospel Team:—Quartet: Helma Miller, Alta Hertzler, Myciah Sieber, Edna Good. Speakers: Ernest Lehman, leader; Royal Bauer, Wilfred Ulrich; Weyburn Groff; Kay Nelson; Roy Roth.

Illinois-Iowa Gospel Team:—Quartet: Eugene Greenwalt, Stanley Swartzendruber, Gail Yoder, Chester Long. Speakers: Russell Krabill, leader; Clayton Beyer; Royce Engle; John Detwiler; Don McCammon.

Gospel Teams

he Southeastern Gospel Team consisted of the Wyler Quartet. The topics which they discussed were: "The Cost of Self-Denial" and "Living for Jesus—a New Year's Resolution." This team traveled during the entire vacation except for several days at Christmas time. In Pennsylvania they gave programs at Palmerton, Weissport, Teshighton, Manheim, York, and Martinsburg. Other programs were given at Sharpsburg, Maryland; Martinsburg, West Virginia; Woodworth, Lima, and Elida, Ohio. At Martinsburg, West Virginia they visited their parents and gave programs in the neighboring communities. At Elida, Ohio, the quartet assisted A. J. Metzler on one evening of his series of evangelistic meetings.

The spirit of national emergency in Canada was quite evident to the Northeastern Team. Returning from Canada they saw Niagara Falls. They spent Christmas in eastern Pennsylvania and visited historic spots in Philadelphia. At Sidelings Hill C. P. S. Camp they met several former students of Goshen College. They gave programs at Vineland and Toronto, Canada; Markham, Clarence Center, and Craghan, New York; Deep Run, Doylestown, Souderton, Blooming Glen, Souderton Ammonite Home, Sidelings Hill C. P. S. Camp, Green Castle, Johnstown, and Meadville, Pennsylvania; Pinta, Maryland.

A ladies' quartet and six speakers composed the Illinois Gospel Team. The C. P. S. Camp at Henry, Illinois was visited. At Peoria Mission the quartet assisted at a wedding. Among the various places of interest which the team visited was the campus of the University of Illinois. Programs were rendered at Freeport, Sterling, Tiskilwa, Arthur, Fisher, Morton, Peoria, Roanoke, Pleasant Hill, and Naperville, Illinois.

The Illinois-Iowa Gospel Team traveled ten days. At one time the Iowa mud made it necessary for the men to call for the aid of a tractor. The team was favorably impressed with western hospitality and the appreciative audiences. The trip was climaxed at East Union, Iowa, where the program was rendered to an audience of more than a thousand. Programs were given at Kouts, Indiana; Flanagan, Metamora, and Bellevue Acres, Illinois; Manson, South English, Mayland, East Union, Iowa City, and Wellman, Iowa.

The Northeastern, Illinois, and Illinois-Iowa Gospel Teams used three themes for their programs: "Facing Our Spiritual Needs," "Being a Christian Today," and "The Witness of Ammonite Youth in Our Day." Only two talks were given each evening—more time was given to the quartets than is usual on gospel team programs. The testimony of all members of the teams was that their time was well spent—the experiences and contacts which they had will mean much in building a richer Christian experience.

Best Wish

Elementary Education Club

Presidents - - - - - Mildred Witmer, Ruth Brenneman
 Secretary-Treasurer - - - - - Mary Jo Schrock

Fifty-seven students are enrolled in the elementary teaching curriculum and it is for them that this organization functions. The purposes of the club are: (1) to create enthusiasm for the work of teaching, (2) to stress the importance and dignity of teaching as a profession, (3) to bring before the members some of the best procedures of public school work by securing as speakers successful teachers and administrators from the field, and (4) to emphasize the need of a strong Christian foundation for the teaching profession. In addition to the regular meetings, the club presented a program in chapel during National Education Week.

Many people think that elementary teaching does not require the same degree of ability that secondary teaching does. To refute this idea the club encourages prospective teachers in the elementary field. As Margaret Mead of the American Museum of Natural History says, "For as the mother and father and teacher of little children set the stage, so later will the play be enacted and not otherwise." This statement contains more truth than most people realize. With a Christian background the elementary teacher can have a deciding influence on future generations. There is a great need today for elementary teachers who are willing to devote their best energy, skill, and talent to the teaching of children. The club aims to hold before its members not only the highest professional standards, but also the challenge of sincere service in the name of the Master Teacher.

N. C. A. Study Commission

Director - - - - - H. S. Bender
Secretary - - - - - Paul Erb

Whether in the individual or in the institution, self-study is indispensable. The life which is not criticized is a weak life, and the institution which does not subject itself to a constant scrutiny will certainly be weak in its functioning. The North Central Association Study Commission was organized at Goshen College for the purpose of studying various phases of college work with a view to improvement.

This study is under the direction of a North Central Association committee, and is one of the direct benefits of North Central Association membership. From a much larger group of applicants, twenty-eight colleges, of which Goshen College is one, were chosen to participate in this two-year study program. Dean Bender, with a background of training in a Workshop conducted last summer at the University of Minnesota, is in charge of the local study program.

The Commission has engaged in the following projects among others: (1) a study of drop-outs in which data were gathered, graphs constructed, and interpretations made concerning students who in the last fourteen years began a college course at Goshen and did not continue to a degree; (2) objectives, including both instructional objectives in the curricular activities of the college and non-instructional objectives in the extra-curricular activities; (3) two-year certificates, their use by other colleges and their desirability and possible use at Goshen; (4) evaluation procedures, looking to an improvement of examination techniques and a closer correlation of objectives and evaluation; (5) remedial reading—needs and procedures; (6) freshmen—a factual description of freshmen at Goshen College over a period of years including such details as occupational preferences, high school grade averages, test scores, and freshman grade averages.

Time Off for Fun

Calendar

September

- 4 Beginning of Freshman Days. One hundred and eight freshmen invade the campus. Boys outnumbered 53 to 55.
- 9 Registration for upper-classmen and night students. Some new faces and many old ones.
- 10 Classes begin and minds are weary already. Dr. Hershberger's absence is conspicuous.
- 11 Thimble Party held at end of Gra-Roy Drive. Scavenger hunt and wiener roast. Stag Party well supplied with watermelons and ball games. Everyone knows everyone.
- 12 Get-acquainted Social at the Cab'in. Surkees—charades—pretzels—punch.
- 15 The first fountain party of the year. Albert Miller, Paul Brunner, and George Maniari are the victims.
- 16 Beginning of Week of Prayer. C. N. Hostetter from Grantham, Pennsylvania, is special speaker. Student prayer groups held every evening in the dormitories.
- 21 The final meeting of Prayer Week. A large audience and a very inspirational service.
- 22 Literary soliritation day. Good programs on both sides. Much excitement and many upsets too.
- 26 Class outings held. Freshmen have banquet with music as theme. Sophomores indulge in hamburger fry at Cabin. Juniors have late leave in Gunden's truck at Benton. Seniors pull a fake sneak to New Paris.
- 29 First inter-society game of the softball season. Adelprians 1—Auroras 3.

October

- 1 U. P. C. A. Cabinet outing at Eighth Street Mennonite Church Scout Cabin. Inspiring address given by Paul Erb. Junior-Senior team takes softball league honors undefeated. The first undefeated team in four years!
- 3 Chapel address by Dr. Amstutz on "How to Get the Most From Your College Education."
- 6 Literary outings driven indoors by downpour of rain. According to Dorothy Snapp, "a hilarious, huge, happy, hungry horde of dorm and out-of-dorm students assembled in the dining hall." Program given by both literaries.
- 7 Herbert Petrie and White Hussars presented a program of symphonic and lighter music in Goshen High School auditorium.
- 8 First number of Lecture series presented. Blind Pierre Knox and his xylophone thrilled large group of students. Auroras defeat Adelprians 3-2 to capture the inter-society softball title.
- 10 Sister's All in Kulp Hall. Open house for all the guests. Men's Man Hunt by the fellows, with the Adelprians victorious.
- 13 Lecture on "Pottery" given by Miss Laura Lawrenceson in Aurora Hall. Epidemic of peculiar laughing followed!
- 15 Freshmen beat the Junior-Senior team in first football game. Score 7-6.

October—(Continued)

- 17 Unusually interesting chapel program with Ted Klassen relating relief work experiences.
- 19 First Vesper program by the A Cappella Chorus. The members were quite unsure of themselves but managed to pull through.
- 24 Aurora vs. Adelpian touch football game with an Aurora victory. Elkhart vs. Goshen football game big attraction for college students.
- 28 Mysterious ghosts walked the campus—in the library and classrooms. Someone said their names could have been Myriam, Alta, Thelma, and Edna! We wonder?
- 30 "U" financial drive very successful. Many termites and bugs exterminated by a rising thermometer.
- 31 G. S. Stoneback special speaker in chapel. Halloween is toned down by pouring rain. However, odd signs and Professor Foder's studio guest are evidences of mild activity.

November

- 1 Hilarious hard-time party held for all students in gymnasium. Exciting and weird trips to the basement add thrills.
- 3 Juniors held special farewell party for Hugh King and Howard Kauffman in Cabin. Good time enjoyed by everyone.
- 4 Mysterious salt in the sugar bowls at breakfast. Mice?
- 7 Coffman Hall Open House. Clean rooms—snoopy girls—program in the gym—pie a la mode!
- 10 State Teacher Training inspectors visit the school and speak in chapel.
- 11 Armistice day commemorated in chapel. Dean Bender principal speaker—"The Rise and Fall of the Anti-Christ." Peace Society meeting in evening.
- 12 Elementary Education Club conducts chapel. Freshmen defeat the Junior-Senior team in final football game 18-12 to capture the football title.
- 13 Second lecture number presented. O. E. Baker from the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. convinces us that the farm is a pretty stable place to be.
- 17 Beginning of Courtesy Week. First program given in chapel. "It's Fun When You Know the Rules," by H. H. Hartzler.
- 18 Second Courtesy program. "Don't Get Corned," Esther Hartzler; and "Heading for the King Row," Ethan Horst. Rooster Run held on athletic field. The rooster was finally caught by Fred Swartzendruber in five minutes and eleven seconds.
- 19 Final Courtesy program with a skit entitled "Life Goes to Goshen College." Conscience-smitten Merle Jacobs looked rather experienced.
- 20 Homecoming—and successful chorus program. Record gets a build-up at banquet.
- 21 7:45-3:30 classes. Teachers look solemnly at nodding students. 3:30 football game between Adelpians and Auroras with hard-fighting Adelpians on top 6 to 0. Bob Stump received injury to collarbone. 8:00 lecture by James Saunders on "The Pan-American Highway."

November—(Continued)

- 22 Educational Conference held during the morning hours. Varsity defeats plucky Alumni team 32-32 in basketball. Alumni banquet and Musicales brighten the evening. Gylar Quartet stars!
- 23 Amid sorrowful farewells our guests return home. All is quiet again.
- 25 Rubinoff and his violin at Goshen High School. Varied opinions.
- 28 First public debate—freshmen vs. sophomores. Freshman Affirmatives carry off the honors with Arthur Weaver and William Zentz, the bearers. Freshman party in gym after debate.

December

- 5 Clever presentation of Aeon-Aurora musical program. It was well-attended and the rendition excellent.
- 8 Early chapel followed by President Roosevelt's speech to Congress asking for declaration of war upon Japan. Student body somewhat dazed by events.
- 10 Maple Leaf program given in chapel by the staff. Contest rules were presented and enthusiasm raised.
- 14 A Cappella Chorus goes to North Manchester to sing the "Messiah." Large chorus and beautiful music. Cold weather and icy roads.
- 18 Final rehearsal for "Messiah" program.
- 19 Excellent rendition of "Messiah" by the college choruses. Students carol after the program and leave for "home sweet home."
- 20 Christmas vacation begins.

To Help Light Your Path To Success

Students everywhere are finding that lessons can be mastered more quickly when there's a certified I.E.S. Specification Lamp to help them with their homework. Reading's done more easily, quickly, and accurately. Facts are remembered better. There's less unconscious straining to see and eyes are thus protected from unnecessary fatigue due to poor lighting.

A nationally famous professional group of lighting engineers, the Illuminating Engineering Society, drew up specifications for these lamps which are now made by many manufacturers. Look for the certification tag of approval identifying I.E.S. Lamps.

Whatever the style of your desk or study table at home, you can find an I.E.S. Lamp to suit it beautifully. There are table, floor, and bridge types . . . some of the latter with a handy swing arm to adjust perfectly over a drawing board or sewing table. Ask for I.E.S. Lamps to make your seeing easier . . . and to help light your path to success.

Dear Jenny,
Having just seen someone you met, I don't know what to say. But I think we did, both drink - the other kind. Now, I never did get out to Jerry's as I can't say I had a good time in your home, - but will let's other friends - I'll always remember you as the girl who couldn't keep a secret.
Love,
Cecily Jane

Dear Jenny:
To a sweet, sincere little lass I wish the most success in the world. To know you Jenny, has meant much to me. Now you are leaving Gashen. It is with regret that we see you go. Hope to see you next year.
Love,
Laurie.
Laurie.

What a mixture!
There are so many things I could tell you. I think I should have now space could permit. Remember our neighbors? I love, you love, the don't - we! - you should have been greatly appreciated especially when Otha was gone for so long.
I wish you all the good life can afford because you are worthy of it. Remember me always lots of love, Love,
Laurie.

Dear Jennie,
 you were a grand chem. lab and you. Lab gal. We had to use your work hard but it was glad I learned to know Francis. I am glad perhaps we will see lots more of each other when we are in Boston. "Technicians".
 Lovingly, Laddie

Good night!
 I hope you are
 all well and happy.
 Love, Laddie

Jennie Dear,

To write everything that I would like to would take books as well as ages. I'll never forget that special "date" we had one Sun.
 evening when we went walking and then came back and "snooped" a little. You were always on the dot when I needed some one to cheer me up. Next year is going to be terribly empty without you so please come back to see us often, especially me. Bye now honey, and never forget your pal Barb "Little more" End.

Dear Jennie:
 "You were a swell neighbor."
 Don't forget the hall parties and the good program. Good Luck to you in everything. Love
 Barb

Love to You
 Barb

Love to you
 Barb
 I hope you are
 all well and happy.
 Love, Laddie

Dear Jimmy
your neighbor + friend
this year. Don't forget those parties that we had out in the hall after legit's over.
Thanker so much for the wonderful pop corn (corn!) that you gave out.
Don't forget to write to me this summer.
Best besides to you in your work.
Be careful with the "red heads".
Love
"red heads"

Dear Jimmy,
I didn't only come to your room to listen to your radio, but because we always had some good times together. I wish you were coming back next year.
Come to see me in Pa. sometime.
Love
Normi

Dear Jimmy,

It's swell to have known you and I hope we'll see each other in the future lots of times.
Love
Pete

Dear Jennie,

It certainly has been grand staying here in the dorm! May you have success in everything you undertake to do. God bless it.

A friend,
Ruth Pauline

Dear Jimmy
well how do you spell it with a J
arg. I have always had trouble with your name
but not with you! Best regards
to a swell girl.
Sincerely
Norm White

Dear Jimmy,
Best wishes to the best room-mate a person could wish for. I enjoyed and loved you so much.
It meant a lot to know with you on top. You were you understood perfectly well. I mean every word.
No. Best of luck, to you in your future. Always feel welcome to come and visit me.
Lots of love
from 1st room
